

Almost three weeks of the season of refusal and restraint have elapsed and as was to be expected there has been no awakening from the social lethargy the parlor was used for music, cards and games of various kinds. At a late hour delicious refreshments were served.

Those enjoying the evening were Miss which always marks the period of pen-ance. But then, it is a little too early, the first feeling of mingled rest and quietude has not yet worn off, and al-though there are indications that sothough there are indications that sothough there are indications that so-ciety still takes an interest in worldly affairs, yet during the past week they have not made themselves manifest in any marked degree. Bicycling and out-of-door sports have been the foe of any marked degree. Bicycling and out-of-door sports have been the foe of emui in the athletic set, while lunch-eons and thimble bees have been the amusement of the more demure spirits.
